New Library Website

On September 15, 2004, the Library introduced its new website. Fast title searching for electronic journals is a prominent feature.

Serials Solutions, Inc. provides a new interface for searching electronic journals. The new interface offers clarity and ease of usage. When there are several sources for journal access, each is listed under the title, including range of years available. Serials Solutions' listing also provides a handy subject search feature.

New Printers Installed in the Information Services Area and Computer Lab

There are many improvements to the Information Technology resources. Although other changes have been made to improve the performance and stability of the publicly available systems, two very visible improvements came on-line on September 1, 2004, two new printers and print release stations now available for patron use. In the first floor Information Services Lab, a high-speed printer was installed. The printer provides for both black and white and full color and is capable of printing single-sided or double-sided pages. In the Computer Lab, a RICOH printer/copier was installed. The printer portion of this device is capable of printing in color or black-and-white and the copier portion is available only in color. While printing from the RICOH printer is now available, copying will be available October 1, 2004. Prices for printing are $0.20 for black-and-white and $0.50 for color.

Introduction to Molecular Biology Information Resources

The National Center for Biotechnology Information (NCBI) three-day course on Introduction to Molecular Biology Information Resources will be offered in various locations across the United States during the 2004-2005 academic year.
